WORK SESSION ITEM WS#2

TO: Mayor and City Council

FROM: Director of Community and Economic Development

SUBJECT: Density Bonus Ordinance

RECOMMENDATION:

It is recommended that the City Council review and comment on this report.

DISCUSSION:

In 1979, the California State Legislature created an incentive program, the "Density Bonus Law" to encourage private developers to include affordable units in their market-rate developments without government subsidies. By increasing the density of a residential development beyond what is allowed by the underlying zoning, the per-unit land and infrastructure costs are reduced. Consequently, a developer could "subsidize" the cost of creating the affordable units through the proceeds generated by the greater number of market rate units allowed by the density bonus. According to the original version of the law, developers were entitled to a 25% density increase if they agreed to make a percentage of the total units in a market-rate development affordable to very low, low and moderate income households.

In 2004 California adopted Senate Bill 1818 which made significant changes to the existing State density bonus law. These changes included reducing the number of affordable units a developer must create in order to qualify for a density bonus and expanding the incentives and concessions a municipality must grant the developer. California State law requires municipal governments to adopt procedures by which residential developers may request increases to the allowable density of their residential development and/or other concessions, if they include units affordable to low and moderate-income households. The California legislature recently passed Senate Bill 435 which, if signed by the Governor as anticipated, will make technical and clarifying amendments to the State density bonus law as revised by SB 1818. The City's draft ordinance incorporates these latest changes.

Elements of the State Density Bonus Law

The revised State density bonus regulations require the City to include the following three main elements in a Density Bonus Ordinance (DBO):

1. Density bonus – An increase in the number of residential units beyond what is allowed by the zoning for a particular site;

2. Incentives and concessions – Relief from development standards including parking requirements; and
3. Alternatives to the creation of specified units – Other means, aside from creating affordable or senior units, by which a developer may be granted a density bonus, concessions and incentives.

Density Bonus for Specified Units: Affordable or Senior Housing

The ordinance must provide for a density bonus, and incentives or concessions (described later in this report), when a developer constructs a residential development containing units meeting specific requirements.

Affordable Units – A developer of a residential development of five or more units may request a density bonus if the developer agrees to at least one of the following:

- Make at least five percent of the total units of their development affordable to Very Low Income Households (Very Low income is defined as households earning no more than 50% of the Area Median Income (AMI) adjusted for household size); or
- Make at least ten percent of the total units affordable to Lower Income Households (80% of AMI); or
- Make at least ten percent of the units in a common interest development affordable to moderate income households (120% of AMI).

The “density bonus” for providing affordable units is a density increase of at least 5 percent and no more than 35 percent over the otherwise maximum allowable residential density. The exact amount of the density bonus will vary according to the percentage of affordable housing units provided by the developer at a given income category. Attachment A presents the range of density increases available to the developer if affordable units exceed the various threshold requirements. All density calculations resulting in fractional units shall be rounded up to the next whole number.

State law requires that units made affordable to very low and low-income households maintain their affordability for at least 30 years. However, only the initial occupants of affordable ownership units in a common interest development must be moderate income households. Rather than apply resale restrictions to these units, State law allows the City to recapture the initial amount required to make the unit affordable and a proportionate share of the appreciation upon subsequent sale.

Senior Housing - A developer of housing reserved exclusively for senior citizen households may request a 20% density bonus if the developer agrees to at least one of the following:

- Construct a residential development of 35 or more units; or
- Construct a mobile home park of any number of spaces.

The developer must specify the category of units which will warrant the density bonus.

Incentives and Concessions: Development Standards and Parking

State law requires that the ordinance include incentives and concessions to developers creating affordable (but not senior) units that will result in identifiable, financially sufficient and actual cost reductions. The City has little flexibility in determining the nature of these concessions and incentives since State law provides specific definitions for each. According to State law, "concession or incentive" includes:

- A reduction in site development standards;
- Modification of zoning code requirements; and
- Modification of architectural design requirements that exceed the minimum building standards approved by the California Building Standards Commission.

State law specifically defines the following reductions in site development standards as concessions or incentives:

- A reduction in setback and square footage requirements;
- A reduction in the ratio of parking spaces that would otherwise be required; and
- Approval of mixed use zoning.

According to State law, by agreeing to create the minimum percentage of affordable units as described above, a developer will be entitled to one incentive or concession. By increasing the percentage of affordable units in specific steps, the developer will trigger additional incentives or concessions. Attachment A also shows the progression of incentives or concessions that apply at specific percentages for each income range.

Developments entitled to the regulatory relief described above, are also allowed to employ the following parking ratio:

- Zero to one bedroom – one onsite parking space,
- Two to three bedrooms – two onsite parking spaces,
- Four or more bedrooms – two and one-half parking spaces.

Additionally, State law allows for developers to meet the onsite parking requirements through tandem parking or uncovered parking.

Alternatives to the creation of Specified Units:

The revised State law requires the City to provide a density bonus along with concessions and incentives if a developer agrees to the following action even though they do not directly create affordable housing units:

- Land Donation – State law now permits a developer to donate a certain amount of land to the City in lieu of constructing affordable housing. By donating the land, the developer is entitled to a 15% increase over the maximum allowable density. The parcel must be at least one acre in size or of sufficient size to permit the development of at least 40 units. It must also have the appropriate zoning to make the development of the units feasible.
- Child Care Facility: If a developer includes a child care facility as a component of their residential development, the City must grant either an additional density bonus that is an amount of square feet of residential space that is equal to or greater than the amount of square feet in the child care facility, or an additional concession or incentive designated by the City to contribute significantly to the economic feasibility of the construction of the child care facility.

Proposed Density Bonus Ordinance

The proposed ordinance closely follows the State law and will allow the City to impose specific procedures, collect fees and standardize monitoring and enforcement of the affordable units produced in accordance with the ordinance. The California Constitution requires the State to reimburse local governments for programs mandated by the State, however, SB1818 contained a fee disclaimer provision which provided that the State would not reimburse local governments for implementing the program. Attachment B is the proposed ordinance.

The proposed ordinance would primarily apply to developments of 5 to 19 units. A review of Planning records since 2000 indicates that there have been about 20 residential development projects which fall within 5 to 19 units. The City's Inclusionary Housing Ordinance (IHO) requires residential developments of 20 or more units to provide fifteen percent of units to be affordable for 45 years and developments of 20 or more dwelling units will be governed by the IHO. The proposed ordinance specifies that the IHO will prevail if there is any conflict between the two ordinances, e.g. in the term of the affordability restrictions.

Next Steps

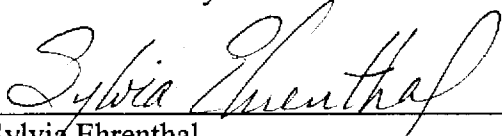

The proposed ordinance will next be referred to the Planning Commission for review and recommendation to Council. It is expected to be before Council in public hearing in November.

ORDINANCE ADDING ARTICLE 19 TO CHAPTER 10 OF
THE HAYWARD MUNICIPAL CODE RELATING TO DENSITY BONUSES

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF HAYWARD DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

The City Council finds and determines that lack of access to affordable housing has a direct impact upon the health, safety and welfare of the residents of the City of Hayward. According to the 2000 U.S. Census, about forty percent (40%) of Hayward tenant households (8,669 households) pay more than thirty percent (30%) of their income for rent. Only twenty-two percent (22%) of the population of Alameda County can afford to buy a home here, significantly below the national average of fifty-seven percent (57%). According to the 2000 U.S. Census, approximately thirty-two percent (32%) of tenant households pay more than thirty-five percent (35%) of household income for rent. Forty percent (40%) of tenants pay more than thirty percent (30%) of household income for rent. Because all forms of housing are expensive to build, rent and buy, a variety of housing programs and resources are required to help meet the need for affordable housing. The City is limited in its ability to maintain a thriving mixed-income community without additional affordable housing. Rising land prices have been a key factor in preventing development of new affordable housing. New housing construction in the City that does not include affordable units aggravates the existing shortage of affordable housing by absorbing the supply of available residential land. This reduces the supply of land for affordable housing and increases the price of remaining residential land. Providing the affordable units required by this Ordinance will help to ensure that part of the City's remaining developable land is used to provide affordable housing.

The California Legislature requires each local government to adopt an ordinance that specifies how the jurisdiction will comply with Section 65915 et seq. of the California Government Code. This Ordinance is intended to satisfy the requirements of Government Code Section 65915 et seq. by specifying the methods and procedures by which developers of certain Residential Development Projects may request density bonuses and other incentives in relationship to the construction of said Residential Development Projects, or in relationship to the donation of land intended for the construction of Residential Development Projects, in which Affordable Housing Units will be reserved for and made available to Very Low income, Lower income, Moderate income, and/or Senior Citizen households.

- d. The transferred land and the Affordable Housing Units shall be subject to a deed restriction, which shall be recorded on the property at the time of dedication, ensuring continued affordability of the units for a term of at least thirty (30) years.
- e. The land is transferred to the City or to another housing developer approved by the City.
- f. The transferred land shall be within the boundary of the proposed Residential Development Project or, if the City agrees, within one-quarter mile of the boundary of the proposed Residential Development Project.

SEC. 10-19.150 CHILD CARE FACILITIES.

When an Applicant proposes to construct a Residential Development Project that conforms to the requirements of Section 10-19.130 and includes a Child Care Facility that will be located on the premises of, as part of, or adjacent to, the Residential Development Project, the City shall grant either of the following: (i) An additional Density Bonus that is an amount of square feet of residential space that is equal to or greater than the amount of square feet in the Child Care Facility; or (ii) an additional concession or incentive designated by the City to contribute significantly to the economic feasibility of the construction of the Child Care Facility.

The City shall require, as a condition of approving the Residential Development Project that the following occur: (i) The Child Care Facility shall remain in operation for a period of time that is as long as or longer than the period of time during which the Affordable Housing Units are required to remain affordable pursuant to this Article; and (ii) of the children who attend the Child Care Facility, the children of Very Low Income Households, Lower Income Households, Moderate Income Households shall equal a percentage that is equal to or greater than the percentage of Dwelling Units that are made affordable to Very Low Income Households, Lower Income Households, or families of Moderate Income Households pursuant to Section 10-19.130.

Notwithstanding any requirement of this Article, the City shall not be required to provide a Density Bonus or concession for a Child Care Facility if it finds, based upon substantial evidence, that the community has adequate child care facilities.

SEC. 10-19.160 CONDOMINIUM CONVERSIONS.

When an Applicant's Residential Development Project is the conversion of an existing apartment complex to a condominium complex and the Applicant agrees to make at least thirty-three percent (33%) of the total units of the proposed condominium Residential Development Project affordable to moderate-income households for thirty years (30), or fifteen percent (15%) of the total units of the proposed condominium Residential Development Project to Lower Income households for thirty years (30), and agrees to pay for the administrative costs incurred by the City related to process the application and monitor the future status of the Affordable Housing Units, the City shall either (i) grant a Condominium Conversion Density Bonus or (ii) provide other incentives of equivalent financial value to be determined by the City.

An Applicant shall be ineligible for a Condominium Conversion Density Bonus or other incentives under this Section if the apartments proposed for conversion constitute a Residential Development Project for which a Density Bonus or other incentives were previously provided under this Article.

SEC. 10-19.170 DESIGN, DISTRIBUTION AND TIMING OF AFFORDABLE HOUSING UNITS

Affordable Housing Units must be constructed concurrently with market-rate units. The Affordable Housing Units shall be integrated into the Residential Development Project and be comparable in infrastructure (including sewer, water and other utilities), construction quality and exterior design to the market-rate units. The Affordable Housing Units must also comply with the following criteria:

- a. Rental Residential Development Projects: When Affordable Housing Units are required in rental Residential Development Projects, the units should be integrated with the project as a whole. All Affordable Housing Units shall reflect the range and numbers of bedrooms provided in the project as a whole, and shall not be distinguished by design, construction, or materials. All Affordable Housing Units shall be reasonably dispersed throughout the project.

- b. Owner-occupied Residential Development Projects: When Affordable Housing Units are required in owner-occupied Residential Development Projects, the units should be integrated with the project as a whole. Affordable Housing Units may be smaller in aggregate size and have different interior finishes and features than market-rate units so long as the interior features are durable, of good quality and consistent with contemporary standards for new housing. All Affordable Housing Units shall reflect the range and numbers of bedrooms provided in the project as a whole, except that if the market-rate units provide more than four bedrooms, the Affordable Housing Units need not provide more than four bedrooms.

No building permits will be issued for market-rate units until permits for all Affordable Housing Units have been obtained, unless Affordable Housing Units are to be constructed in phases pursuant to a plan approved by the City.

Market-rate units will not be inspected for occupancy until all Affordable Housing Units have been constructed, unless Affordable Housing Units are to be constructed in phases pursuant to a plan approved by the City.
